17-24 March 2013

In the Transformer Studio we will design and describe life in a fully-adaptable environment. During the seminar week we will travel to Delft to actually build the Transformer.

The Delft University of Technology (TU Delft) is the home base of The Why Factory. For this workshop we will stay at the Why Factory for one week and collaborate with the Bucky-Lab, a research group, which is also located at our faculty. During this week we will develop different prototypes, which will show how the Transformer material can work and thus provide a preview of living in a Transformable world. Barbapappa experienced...

The excursion and workshop is a part of our Transformer studio. We encourage the students of the studio to take part in the excursion. However, it is not obligatory. The studio is open to other students, too.
